HARDY FUCHSIAS. (White or Blue labels) 10cm (4") pots £1.55 4 for £5.50

Hardy Fuchsias should be planted in the ground, after all danger of frost has ceased; in order that they may become established during the summer.

In the autumn, before the onset of winter frosts, they should be mulched around the base with materials such as leaf-mould, garden compost, peat, straw, manure etc. to protect their roots from freezing.

Hardy Fuchsias grown in containers may not survive the winter if left outside, as the whole pot could freeze and damage the roots.

The varieties marked with an asterisk (*) are only hardy in Southern England in a sheltered position.
